TO THE PUBLIC.

THE PAPER MILL owned by the subscribers, and conducted by two European master workmen, Cross and Wornick, is now in operation in manufacturing Paper. The experiment has been successful in making about two hundred reams of Wrapping Paper. In conjunction with those who are engaged in the same pursuit, we hope we shall be able to supply the growing demand of business and literature—and by which to prevent the importation of paper from foreign markets, and destroy our dependence upon other States, for this most valuable article. It will be our constant exertion to keep a quantity of the different kinds of paper, to supply our Fellow-Citizens; and make it so as to prevent complaint as to quality.

From the Western American.

The editor of the Western American has been requested by the author of the following publication, to give it an early insertion. His compliance, he will observe, is without the knowledge of Mr. Grundy, who is now absent.

For the Western American.

"Faithful among the faithless, among innumerable false, unmoved, unshaken, unswerving, unflinching—his loyalty kept, his love, his zeal, nor number, nor example, with him wrought, to swerve from truth or change his constant mind. From amidst them forth he passed—Long way with hostile scorn which he sustained superior, nor of violence feared—And with retorted scorn his back he turned, on those proud towers to swift destruction doomed."

FELLOW CITIZENS,

WHEN an individual in any country possesses independence; and finds himself enough to oppose the growing aristocracy of his country, and check those who are attempting to aggrandize themselves at the expense of the community, he ought not to be surprised at hearing himself called a demagogue—the leader of a mob of ignorance, &c. he ought to calculate on persecution, and on being told that he is unworthy of the confidence of that people whose interest he has struggled to preserve. Of this we have a recent instance in the publication against Mr. Grundy, under the signature of the "Poor Farmer."

In this production we view the sacred laws of truth transgressed without remorse, and principle sacrificed upon the altar of envy. Before the "Poor Farmer" made his illiberal and ferocious attack, he ought to have recollected, that bold assertions unsupported by the shadow of evidence, & made in direct opposition to truth itself, will not, nay, cannot be accredited by an enlightened public;—and had he taken the advice he has given Mr. Grundy, and slept (not with Smith's Wealth of Nations, &c. &c. &c. under his head, but with these two remarks of the Wife Man—"A fool is known by the multitude of his words; and his lips enter into contention and his mouth call for strokes," he would not have launched forth his little untutored bark on the tempestuous billows of public investigation, and it would at least have caused "his moral reflection to come abroad his mind," that for every idle word, much more for falsehood, he should give an account.

But who is this man, and where does he live, who possesses such a degree of audacity and diffidence, to declare to thousands, who know the contrary, that Mr. Grundy possesses neither learning or experience, and that one half of our representatives are fools? What great achievement has this writer performed on the political theatre? What trophies has he taken from the enemies of his country? At what time were the councils of the nation illuminated by the display of his superior intelligence? Why does he not disclose his real name to his countrymen, that they may have an opportunity of confiding their interest to his care, and thereby prevent their rights from being endangered by demagogues or fools? If he would condescend to serve his country in the legislature, the "Poor Farmer" would want no other advocates; by a single glance of his intelligent eye he would communicate so much light to the house of representatives, that opposition would cease, and every adversary be disarmed! In all this, perhaps I may be mistaken; this writer may be some malicious being, who envies virtue and talents which he cannot successfully imitate, and is now endeavoring to scribble himself into notice.

I, fellow citizens, was a constituent of Mr. Grundy's when he represented the county of Washington, and have had a full opportunity of examining both his public and private conduct. I also know his history from his infancy, and confess I feel much amazed when I see in print, a declaration that he possesses neither learning or experience. The "Poor Farmer" surely does not know that Mr. Grundy received his education from the greatest literary character that Kentucky ever knew, and was considered as one of his most finished scholars. After his scholastic studies were completed he devoted himself to the study of the law, and the acquisition of such knowledge in the different departments of science, as would best qualify him to become serviceable to himself and country. Shortly after Mr. Grundy commenced the practice of the law, the late convention was called. The people of Washington who had known him from his childhood, saw in his conduct such disinterestedness, that they fixed on him as the first man of their choice, at a time when all their rights were at stake; and had the "Poor Farmer" observed the conduct of Mr. Grundy in the first essay which he made in the convention, he would have seen him opposing that anti-republican attempt which was there made, by which (if it had succeeded) no man would have been eligible to the senate in this state, unless he possessed a certain quantity of property. He would also have seen him endeavoring to procure that change in the judiciary system, which happily for the community has since been effected in a great measure by his industry and perseverance;—and let it not be said that his individual interest or ease influenced his conduct. The adoption of the circuit courts was directly against both his talents and attention to business;—it secured him a handsome fee of practice in the districts which he attended; and it is a fact within my own knowledge, that previous to the fixing of the legislature in 1802, Mr. Grundy had disposed of his property in Washington, and purchased in the neighborhood of Bardonia, to which place he removed immediately upon his return from the legislature. In short, every part of Mr. Grundy's political conduct has proved that the public good was his governing object, and that he possessed independence enough to pursue it regardless of consequences.

Fellow citizens, until the last sitting of the legislature we have heard of no complaints against the conduct of Mr. Grundy, and of what crime was he then guilty which ought to have awakened the vengeance of the "Poor Farmer"?—Why truly, he had the presumption to think the Bank of Lexington was unfriendly to the welfare of his country, & he had the effrontery to produce arguments in support of his opinion!—If that was criminal he ought to be condemned; but if it be the duty of a representative to pursue that conduct, which, in his opinion will promote the happiness and prosperity of his country, he surely is entitled to praise, not censure.

The "Poor Farmer" has commenced his tirade at too early a period.—Although the president and directors of the company have tendered a large quantity of money to the supervisors we have not yet heard of their making any actual payments, nor have we learned that a single cent of their money has gone towards discharging the demand which existed against individuals. This tender might have been made by the president and directors for the purpose of rendering the institution popular, with a knowledge that the money could not be received by the supervisors at that time, and that he cannot have it in his power to compel them to pay it afterwards.—If this be the case the president and directors run no risk, and therefore I can not see any solid basis on which this boasted benevolence stands. I am willing, however, to give those who are interested in the bank, all the credit to which they are entitled. Yet whether they are entitled to any cannot well be determined until we see the expiration of the two months of which they speak—we shall then better understand their motives and the effects of their tender. If it should ultimately appear, that the tender made by the company has been serviceable, those who made it (if they acted from laudable motives) will no doubt receive the thanks of their countrymen. But this by no means proves that the Bank ought to be continued. It ought not to be admitted, that because a man has rendered me a service, that I am under obligations to continue him in a situation in which, he may at some future period ruin me.

I am fellow-citizens, neither a speculator nor a stockholder, but

PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON.

"True to his charge—
He comes, the Herald of a noisy world,
News from all nations lump'ring at his back."

LEXINGTON, FEBRUARY 26.

MARRIED—On Tuesday evening last, by the Rev. James Moore, Mr. JAMES MARSHALL, of Brooke county, Virginia, to Miss MARY W. MARSHALL, daughter of Capt. Henry Marshall of this town.

DIED—On the 16th inst. Mr. Thomas Martin, son of Maj. John Martin, of Clarke county.

A MOST cruel murder was committed on the body of a free black man named Scism, on Sunday evening last, near the farm of Mr. Robert Adams, between 6 and 7 miles from this town. His face appeared to have been fractured by a stroke on the forehead; one corner of his mouth was cut into the cheek; his under lip cut through; his thumbs appeared to have been bit to the bone, with one of his fingers, and the nails torn off, and otherwise beat in a most shocking manner—having been severely whipped with a cowkin, and his eyes apparently gouged about out. The Coroner's inquest yesterday sat on the body, where he died was murdered by James Stephens & Jesse Fitz Gerald. It is sincerely to be hoped by every good citizen, that the perpetrators of this most atrocious crime may be brought to justice.

Mr. Ficklin, Post Master at Russellville, has forwarded to the Editor of the Kentucky Gazette, a letter, from Maj. George Colbert, a half Indian Chief, dated Chickasaw nation, January 19, stating, that a Mr. Wilton, residing in or near Lexington, who had his boat stove at or beyond the Chickasaw Bluffs, about the middle of November last, in passing through the nation, near Colbert's Ferry, lost two of his horses, and employed a man by the name of Wilkins to hunt them—that this man returned with the horses, and informed Mr. Wilton that they had been stolen by the Chickasaw Indians, and that he had followed them above twenty miles; and that he made Mr. Wilton pay 15 dollars for the horses. Upon Maj. Colbert enquiring into the circumstances, it appears, that the horses went to the camp of some Chickasaw Indians, and were delivered by them to a Chickasaw, to be taken care of for the owner—but shortly after, a white man came to the camp and got the horses, took them to Mr. Wilton's camp and told him the story above, which (says the Major) "was false report—that said Wilton only wished to get little money, made him believe it was so." Maj. Colbert concluded by willing notice to be given to Mr. Wilton, that if he should pass through that country in the spring and will call on him, he can inform him fully how he can come at his money; and observes, "It is those rascally fellows travellers serve one another to, and lay the blame on the Indians—it is not right."

WE have seen a letter from Mahanberg County, giving an account of considerable damage being done by the great freshets in the water courses in that country—several horses, cows, and an immense number of hogs are stated to have been swept off by the waters.

The Mail of yesterday furnished nothing farther from the Eastward than Chillicothe. By the Southern Mail on Sunday, nothing of importance was received. The General Assembly of Virginia closed their session on the 1st instant.

A Bill was reported in Congress on the 31st ult. making an appropriation for a number of gun boats, not exceeding twenty-five.

Our fellow-citizens (says the National Intelligencer) will rejoice to perceive the lively solicitude of the Representatives on the wanton outrages offered to our neutral rights by the unjust and cruel treatment of our seamen by British armed vessels. The bill-gent nations ought to know, and the awakening spirit of America will teach them, that national wrongs cannot be endured with impunity; but that they will be redressed, and it may be, avenged with an energy that becomes a powerful nation. We say powerful—for there is no nation on earth more capable of retaliation than that which shall be fraught with injury perfectly unnecessary for him to,

to its aggressors. Fifteen hundred and thirty-eight seamen impressed in the short space of eighteen months! Do not those who suffer these wounds be afflicted on the domestic peace of our citizens, and the honor of our nation, recollect how often famine has flared them in the face; and how often we have saved them from its deadly scourges? Do they recollect for how much of their wealth and glory they are indebted to us? If they do recollect these things are they not aware that a powerful nation, however slow she may be in taking her measures, will, when they are once taken, pursue them with a vigour equal to her justice?

We mean no particular reflection by these remarks on any government. We trust, every government whose subjects commit injustice, will disavow all participation in it. But we do mean unequivocally to mark out what we believe to be the national temper on this important topic.

A fire broke out in Constantinople on the 7th September, which consumed about 1500 houses; and another on the 10th, by which five mosques, three of the barracks of the artillery, and nearly 1000 houses were consumed.

Benevolence is active in all the northern cities, for the relief of the suffering poor at this severe season. Ten thousand dollars have been collected in Philadelphia alone for this purpose. At New-York, in particular, some instances of the most deplorable distress have been incurred, and which but for seasonable relief must have been fatal.

(Raleigh pap.)

A society has been established in New-York under the title of the "Samaritan Society," for administering to the wants of the poor of all descriptions.

A New-York paper of the 18th ult. says, hickory fire-wood was selling at seven dollars a cord, that is, about 21 dollars a cord.

From the Independent Gazetteer.

Extract of a letter from the Hon. John B. Beckwith to a gentleman of this county, dated Washington, 9th Jan. 1835.

"Few general laws have passed. A Bill for erecting a territory out of Indiana, to be called Michigan, finally passed both branches yesterday. The law is not to take effect until the 30th of June. The fear of government to be at Detroit."

"A bill has been lately introduced into the Senate for adjusting & settling the claims to land in Louisiana, preparatory to opening a land office in the territory of Orleans. Provision is made in the same bill for surveying such of the vacant lands there, to which the Indian titles are extinguished. It is not contemplated to open a land office in upper Louisiana."

"No report has yet been made on the memorial from Louisiana. The subject is before a committee of each house, and from the contrary of opinion which exists on it, it is very doubtful what alteration, if any will be made in the law of the last session. They will now, I apprehend, succeed in either of their grand objects, a State Government, or the privilege of importing slaves from Africa."

"A very important and extensive purchase has lately been made, from the French and Fox nation of Indians, lying on both sides of the Mississippi, but principally on the East; running from the mouth of the Illinois river to the mouth of the Ohio, and including it is supposed, at least fifty millions of acres. The treaty is now before the Senate, and I have no doubt they will consent to its ratification."

"The bill to regulate the clearance of armed merchant vessels which has been printed in the newspapers, and which has met with much opposition from the mercantile cities, is now before the Senate, and with I think pass that house in the course of this week."

"Much little business, arising out of this district (for which we have to legislate) and of very little importance to the nation, has occupied the time of Congress this session."

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Bonaparte has furnished another comment upon the law of nations in the stoppage and robbery of Mr. Wagstaff, the British messenger, on his way to Berlin, with dispatches. This act of highway robbery and felony was committed on the 13th, at noon day, between Rhenia and Schwerin, by six French soldiers, one of whom was of superior rank to the rest, within cannon shot of the outposts of the French army in Hanover. They robbed Mr. Wagstaff, and a Hanoverian courier who was with him, of the dispatches, and made the strictest search lest they should have omitted any of the official papers. They dragged them both out of the carriage, and beat them most unmercifully. They tore the insignia from Mr. Wagstaff's breast, and then tied him and the Hanoverian to two separate trees, in an adjoining wood. After some time Mr. Wagstaff contrived to release himself and the courier, and imagining of course, that it was perfectly unnecessary for him to, proceed to Berlin without the dispatches, returned to London, where he arrived yesterday. An article from Hamburg notices this transaction in the following manner:

"Hamburg, Nov. 26.

"On the 13th an English courier from London, by Holm, and a Hanoverian courier, was stopped between Schwerin and Rhenia, by some unknown persons, who took from them their dispatches."

The dispatches of which Mr. Wagstaff was the bearer, were fortunately of no great consequence—they contained merely the remonstrance of our court upon the seizure of Mr. George Rumbold.

No man will hesitate one moment in pronouncing this outrage to have been committed by the orders of Bonaparte. (as usual.)

A private letter from Hamburg asserts that the misunderstanding between the courts of Vienna and Petersburg has increased to such a degree, that the Austrian ambassador is about to leave Petersburg.

The emperor of Austria and the emperor of the French have agreed on the attack and conquest of Turkey, and permission or connivance has been promised for the march of the French troops through Moravia and Galicia, to effect their project of ambition. The pretended cause however of the departure of the Austrian ambassador from Petersburg, is the refusal on the part of the emperor Alexander to comply with the contents of a note or remonstrance against the occupancy by the Russian forces of Corfu and other places in the Mediterranean; and the formidable reinforcements which are continually arriving there."

PARIS, Nov. 1.

His Imperial highness, Prince Joseph, yesterday left his seat at Morfontain, and set out for camps on the coast; he has been followed by all officers belonging to the troops there, who have been here on leave of absence. These unexpected departures have caused several rumours, that the expedition against England will be undertaken before the Emperor's coronation. It is even said, that his Majesty in person will join his troops, or at least be present at their embarkation and departure, to inspire them with that hope of a certainty of success which has hitherto, and always must continue to be, the consequence of those well digested plans, prepared by the genius and executed by the valour, of his Majesty, and that of his officers and men.
